

MAY BE 20,000 MEN FOR THE LOCAL FORTS

(ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLEGRAMS)

WASHINGTON, September 7.—It is believed at Washington that President Roosevelt will send a message to Congress, when it reconvenes, recommending an increase of the army to one hundred thousand men so as to provide a garrison for the Pearl Harbor forts of at least twenty thousand men.

PARADE AFTER SAMOA TRIP

Due to lack of time and the inclement weather of weekdays by Sunday, the parade in honor of Admiral Smith's return from Samoa in October, which was to have been held on the torpedoblast destroyer flotilla, was deferred until after the return from Samoa in October. The fleet entertainment committee, which had been organized upon the Admiral's return, and after discussing the plans for the parade, the Admiral felt that it was better to postpone the parade until after the return from Samoa in October. The Admiral was delighted with the arrangements on behalf of himself and officers and expressed his pleasure in according to the request of the committee, voiced by Chairman George W. Smith, to have the men of the fleet parade the streets. Mr. Smith said that this was a feature which he had never before seen in the city, and that the entire city was interested in the parade. The Admiral had hoped the Admiral could see his way clear to do the same.

On the excursion to Pearl Harbor, Admiral Swinburne also expressed himself as well pleased with this feature and not only wished to make the trip himself but desired all his officers to accompany him.

The committee found Admiral Swinburne, his Chief of Staff, Commander and aide, Lieutenant Poter, a hospitable trio. The Admiral's arrangements with laughter over the Admiral's tales of his former visits. It was the comment of some of the committee that it seemed a coincidence that Mr. Smith should be at the head of the committee to arrange for the Admiral's official doings ashore, when in the time of the overthrow, he was among the leaders who officially welcomed the Admiral, then a Commander, when the marines were landed from the cruiser Boston.

During the committee's visit with the Admiral, Rear Admiral Sebree was announced and the interview came to an end. The committee was then escorted to the torpedoblast destroyer Stewart by Lieut. Poter and placed in charge of Lieut. Edwards, who, arrayed in denim, escorted the visitors over the ship. They were interested in the knife-blade cutters of the seamen and the mass machinery. In fact they discovered that a destroyer is merely a thin skin of steel crammed full of machinery, unlike peas crowding a pod. In the room directly under the deck, where the ship is directed, the visitors were shown that marvel of modern science, even surpassing the wireless telegraph. This was the wireless telephone. It is a small apparatus, looking not unlike the exchange of a telephone in a corporation office. All the destroyers are not provided with wireless telegraph, so communication is maintained between the flotilla by the wireless.

When an officer of the flotilla desires to talk to Lieutenant of the Truxtun he merely sits at the table takes the receiver off the hook, so to speak, touches up the dial, and then calmly speaking into the transmitter calls up the officer of the Truxtun. That officer responds, and conversation is carried on across the water without wires. Then the wireless can be used for telegraph messages as well.

The wireless telephone apparatus, the Forrest system, was installed on the torpedoblast destroyer when it left the Roads in advance of the Atlantic fleet on its long cruise around the world. It is not altogether a success, yet, for sometimes the spark does not come, but when it does the officer can talk across the intervening miles of sea and air.

One of the destroyers it was learned

HONOLULUANS SAW AIRSHIP

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hoffmann of Honolulu, who have been in Germany for many months, had the good fortune to witness the flight of Count Zeppelin's airship at Mannheim. While the Doctor and Mrs. Hoffmann were at Heidelberg, the former announced that the great "Luftschiff" had left Konstanz in the morning and passed ship a message, so they concluded to take the train and see.

So great was the crowd at the railroad station that they could not get to the ticket window, and adopted the American method of going to a man far up the line and asked him to buy three tickets instead of one. So anxious were they to catch the train, Mrs. Hoffmann says, they fairly snatched the tickets from the man's hand and without so much as a "thank you" rushed onto the cars. Luckily Mrs. Hoffmann found a seat. This was on an extra train supposed to get to Mannheim before Count Zeppelin did. The train finally started and they rode for a few minutes, every one on the qui vive and looking out of the windows wondering if they would see the airship.

Presently, a man sitting in the corner of the compartment, who had said the least up to then, shouted, "There he is!" Then he took a good look out of the window himself, then stepped back to let others take a turn. The Doctor looked and instantly his face became all excitement and he called to Mrs. Hoffmann to come. She strained her eyes to see but couldn't make it out. That did not suit the Doctor or the man who had sighted the air vessel, so both, one at one ear and the other at the opposite ear, tried to explain to her that it was "there just by that big cloud, to the left of the church spire," and "lo, I saw it hanging in midair like a big cigar you sometimes see over the entrance to a cigar store. Not a very elegant likeness, but that is just how it looked," writes Mrs. Hoffmann.

"But, oh, it was steady and graceful," she continues. "Naturally as our train sped along it grew larger and larger, as we came closer to Mannheim, and then we got a splendid view of it for over ten minutes. Then we could get a very good notion of it indeed with all its graceful lines and steady carriage. It was a sight. The people really overdid themselves in their expressions of joy. The Count crossed Mannheim and was out of sight before we could get off the train and on to the end of the town, so you can get some idea of how fast he went, and Mannheim is no village. It has 163,000 inhabitants. The Count went to Mainz, back over Heidelberg in the night with his searchlights, down to Stuttgart and some little distance beyond. They came down to look after some little pilikia in the motor. The Count went back in an auto to Stuttgart.

"In the meantime there came up a most terrific lightning and thunder storm, the worst I've seen in many a day. The airship was in a place where the wind had a tremendous sweep and there not being people enough to hold her down the engineer could not manage things and there was a collapse. When the Count saw the ship wrecked he cried like a child, but he had company. All Germany sympathized with him and in less than twenty-four hours over two million marks had been subscribed for him, because he has proved his invention. The Kaiser gave half a million, Berlin, 75,000; Mannheim, 50,000, and so on."

It is estimated that the destroyers are prone to leak, especially in the cabins of the officers. This is due to two things. First, the thin skin covering the ship, and secondly the terrific thumping of the machinery which strains the plates apart and lets the moisture in.

HUSTACE DEFEATED BY LUCAS WHILE RAWLINS WINS OUT

(From Sunday's Advertiser.)

Lucas defeated Hustace in the precinct in which both live, Rawlins was elected in the Second Precinct of the Fourth District despite the opposition of the Buffandean-Cathcart slate and a misuse of the official ballots to accomplish this end, but Cathcart defeated the rest of the reform ticket which practically elected but three out of the thirteen nominees, and United States District Attorney Breckons and William Aylett lost out in the Third Precinct. Cathcart beat Walter Dillingham and A. F. Griffiths. While the Fourth District seems practically favorable to the Lucas interests for the mayoralty nomination, in the Fifth there is a more or less mixed delegation which is claimed to be in the keeping of Achi. Such are the important results of the Republican primaries held in the city precincts yesterday afternoon and evening.

The voting was well attended throughout, but quiet, generally. In many precincts there were no contests. The election of delegates to the Territorial convention had little interest for the voters, the nomination of Prince Kuhio for delegate to Congress being generally conceded, and efforts were centered entirely in the county convention elections.

There was a well defined story going the rounds yesterday that Achi was devoting his time and energies to getting Hustace delegations elected. His reason for doing so is that he considers Hustace the weaker of the two foremost candidates for the mayoralty nomination. By shoving Lucas aside and working Hustace to the front, Achi, it is said, will then have the support of the Nottleyites, or Home Rulers, for the mayoralty nomination which may be handed him by his Labor party. Achi believes that he could defeat Hustace, but isn't quite so sure about defeating Lucas. Whatever of real truth there is in this rumor, it looks like an old Achi trick, and, furthermore, Lucas is next to this move and will balk it.

First Precinct, Fourth District. In the First Precinct, Fourth District, A. M. Brown's balliwick, Prince Kuhio, Delegate to Congress, was elected, and Dan Logan came in on the Waiatale and Kaimuki vote. There was a slim attendance, the results being as follows:

Territorial—A. L. C. Atkinson, 26; John Cassidy, 25; Fred W. Macfarlane, 26; W. C. Roe, 26.

County—Charles G. Bartlett, 25; James H. Boyd, 26; A. F. Clark, 24; E. A. Douthett, 26; Henry Van Giesen, 25; Isaac Harbottle, 26; James L. Holt, 26; D. K. Kaeo, Jr., 25; Sylvester Kahikolo, 24; D. Kaiole, 25; J. K. Kanihianaole, 25; Iona Keiki, 25; Dan Logan, 24; D. Naeole, 23.

There was no opposition to this slate, so the booth was closed at 5:30.

Third Precinct, Fourth District. One of the features of the vote in the Third Precinct, Fourth District, the "haole precinct," was the defeat of United States District Attorney Breckons and William Aylett, the latter a former member of the Legislature and more recently a bandboy. There was a pretty large vote, Clarence Cooke and Belser leading by 128 and 127 votes, respectively. The delegates elected were as follows:

Territorial—Alex. Robertson, 122; J. P. Cooke, 104; John Waterhouse, 92. County—Clarence Cooke, 128; J. J. Belser, 127; W. E. Brown, 117; Chas. S. Crane, 115; Frank J. Kruger, 117; J. H. Fisher, 114; Theo. F. Lansing, 111; Chas. F. Chillingworth, 109; Henry Pfleger, 107; Jos. M. Little, 106; W. H. Bromley, 107; Fred G. Bush, 102; Manuel K. Cook, 102; John F. Soper, 101; Norman Watkins, 101; J. D. Marques, 101; Joseph Richards, 97. Of the three defeated ones, William Aylett received 96; R. W. Breckons, 92; and Gus Schuman, 75.

Those defeated for the Territorial convention were S. F. Chillingworth, 43; Robert H. Baker, 35; W. L. Castle, 25.

Second Precinct, Fourth District.

In the second precinct, fourth district, including Manoa, College Hills, Pawaa, Punahou, Waiatale, etc., Assistant United States District Attorney W. T. Rawlins defeated the Buffandean-Makalea-Cathcart scheme to keep him out, and goes to the convention, but the slate practically won out otherwise.

This was largely due to the machine and underhand politics resorted to to defeat the good party nominees opposed to the Buffandean wing. Mr. Rawlins discovered the scheme to defeat not only himself, but the entire opposition to Cathcart and Buffandean, and this feature doubles back on Buffandean, who is not only president of the precinct club, but is assistant secretary of the County Committee. It was his wing which worked out this move against Mr. Rawlins, for when the nomination meeting was held a week ago, President Buffandean, in endeavoring to keep Rawlins' name off the list in vain, snapped out: "Well, I tell you, Rawlins, you won't get elected, that's all."

The executive committee, or, at least, a part of it, headed by Makalea, was entrusted by Buffandean with getting out the official ballot for yesterday's election. Those ballots, supposed to be guarded and placed in the hands of the election judges, were tampered with, according to evidence secured by showing that extra official ballots were used by the Makalea faction beforehand, and given to the Hawaiians of the Waiatale, Mollili and Pawaa sections to vote direct. These ballots they were to place in the ballot-box, retaining the new ballots unmarked, as they were received from the judges, to be given out to others, so that these could be marked and voted by waiting voters. It was a rotation scheme. This is the manner in which the Buffandean faction secured its high percentage of votes, but the man directly aimed at for defeat was elected, and ran only three votes behind Makalea himself.

Mr. Rawlins made the following statement to an Advertiser representative: "When I reached this voting place at twenty minutes to 2 o'clock this afternoon, which was twenty minutes before the ballot-boxes were open for business, a Hawaiian came to me and asked if I was running for the convention. I told him I was. Then he said: 'We have everything fixed.' He pointed to his left sleeve and said: 'I have the ticket already marked.' He then handed me the official ballot with the slate marked on it. I asked him where he got it. I immediately called Dr. Whitney and another gentleman over to witness this affair. The Hawaiian told me there had been a meeting of Palolo and Waiatale in the forenoon and the ballot had been given to him, already marked, and he was instructed to go to the judges and get the white ballot, then to go into the voting booth and make a show of marking the regular ballot. Then, concealing the ballot received from the judge, he was to come out, hand the one originally marked in the forenoon to the judge, and then come outside and give up the unmarked ballot to one of the crowd engaged in furthering this scheme.

"I got this ballot from Sam Kepano and he said he received it from Jack Ikawai. This slate was aimed at me particularly. Then I got another ballot like this one from Henry Kahiwai, who had also received a ballot marked like Kepano's. I saw him swap ballots in the voting room. I went to Mr. Pringle, a judge of election, and asked him who handled the official ballots, and he said he got them from Buffandean. I went to Buffandean and he said they had been handed to him by Makalea. Half an hour afterwards I saw him and Makalea talking together, and the word was sent out shortly afterwards that I was onto the game and to keep a sharp lookout. I told Makalea he was chairman of the executive committee, and as such asked him where he had the official ballots printed. He said it was none of my business, that was his business."

After the vote was announced, and Rawlins was found to be elected in spite of this underhand work, he was approached by Makalea with a request that he drop the matter and shake hands and "pau pilikia." Mr.

Rawlins refused, but asked Makalea to be manly enough to say where the ballots were printed. If he would give this information Rawlins would shake hands with him. Makalea steadily refused to divulge any information. Buffandean said he did not know anything about the ballots.

As the precinct club has to pay for the expenses, including printing, the executive committee may be called upon to explain, inasmuch as some members of the executive committee knew nothing of Makalea's arrangements. Mr. Rawlins intends to go into the matter, and from present indications it is apparently up to President Buffandean of the club, and as an officer of the Central County Committee, to throw some light on the misdeal, for it was a misdeal, to say the least.

The matter thus goes in the county committee sanctorium, and as no explanation came from Mr. Buffandean, the county committee is saddled with a piece of dirty politics which has not been heard of before.

Those elected are as follows: Territorial—Charles King, J. H. Ku, George Maile.

County and District—E. C. Brown, 132; George Denison, 125; Chas. Kaanui, 94; Chas. Bailey, 92; E. Buffandean, 88; Chas. Lucas, 88; Akona Afong, 88; J. W. Cathcart, 86; Kalimapehu, 84; J. F. Lewis, 82; Henry Hickey, 82; Geo. Makalea, 79; W. T. Rawlins, 76.

Not elected—B. F. Sammons, Jack Naivai, Ralph Lyons, Jack Kuamoo, A. F. Griffiths, W. F. Dillingham.

Fourth Precinct, Fourth District.

In the Fourth Precinct, Fourth District, the ward of both Lucas and Hustace, candidates for the mayoralty nomination, the results tell of the defeat of the Hustace wing and the corresponding victory of the Lucas delegation. Hustace learned that a slate was being run in the precinct and did not hesitate to voice his complaint. Of the so-called Hustace men, among those defeated were Mr. Ballentyne, Charles Phillips, W. C. Parke. The vote was not large, the highest vote being 106. Both candidates were at the polls a part of the time, Hustace most of the time. Everything went on very quietly. Out of the fifteen delegates it is said that twelve of them are for Lucas and three for Hustace.

In other words, it was a victory for Lucas, he also heading the ticket.

Those elected were as follows: Territorial—W. W. Chamberlain, M. F. Prosser, E. A. C. Long.

F. J. Lowrey and Dr. C. B. Wood were defeated. County and District—J. Lucas, 87; R. W. Shingle, 80; G. W. Smith, 79; W. G. Ashley, 79; J. L. McLean, 73; C. M. V. Forster, 67; W. F. Heilbron, 65; C. Hustace, Jr., 62; F. E. Richardson, 59; E. H. Paris, 58; C. A. Long, 56; R. S. Johnston, 54; J. A. Williams, 54; F. O. Boyer, 53; F. B. Damon, 53.

The vote for the other nominees was as follows: H. P. Roth, 51; Chas. Phillips, 49; C. W. Ziegler, 49; E. J. Waterman, 45; C. G. Ballentyne, 44; W. J. Karratti, 40; W. C. Parke, 39; M. T. Lyons, 38; W. L. Howard, 37; S. McKeague, 33; John Walker, 31; J. M. Monsarrat, 28.

Fifth Precinct, Fourth District.

There was no contest in the Fifth Precinct, Fourth District, the polling booth being located in the old Germania Saloon, Queen and South streets. The total number of votes cast for Territorial delegates was 330 and for County delegates 915. The delegates elected are as follows:

Territorial—J. M. Koahe, Charles B. Makani, Joseph Paahao, George B. Paunini.

County and District—Job Batchelor, Charles M. Coster, R. Duvauchelle, George Kawai, John M. Keoloha, John Kamaa, John Kailani, Daniel H. Keilani, Sol. Hanohano, Manuel Leal, K. Nohunohu, John Wallace.

Seventh Precinct, Fourth District.

There was no contest in the Seventh Precinct, Fourth District, the voting place being at San Antonio Hall. The election was quiet, and all came about through the entire selection of the candidates being left to a committee. Those elected are as follows:

Territorial—A. D. Castro, John C. Lane, Ed. W. Quinn.

County and District—J. P. Eckardt, J. Fernandez, Jr.; John Kamanouli, Daniel Kikaha, William Lucas, James F. Morgan, Samuel K. Nawela, Julius P. Rego, V. O. Teixeira, J. A. R. Vierra, H. P. Wood, Jos. K. Woodward.

Murray, John Mareallino, Joseph McKinnon, George O'Neill, M. R. Parmenter, Henry Peters, L. E. Twomey, Harry Worrall, Scott Wright.

Ninth Precinct, Fourth District.

The Booth slate won out hands down in the Ninth Precinct, Fourth District, last night, all but four of the Booth nominees being elected. Alex. Nicholas, who declared a few days ago that he had Booth's slate broken and the pieces thrown into the garbage heap, was completely snowed under, receiving the lowest number of votes cast. When Alex. was able to gasp, it was to declare his intention of deserting the Republican party and going over to the Democrats. The election resulted as follows:

Territorial—Sam Koko, 148; C. N. Marques, 144; Sam Manu, 141; Kukalani, 133.

County and District—C. W. Booth, 160; J. H. S. Kaleo, 130; John Ke, 128; Dan Kawahoa, 124; Andrew McCabe, 124; John Kahanaele, 120; Luma Kahanaele, 117; Nakaiwi, 108; J. A. Silva, 105; M. A. Robinson, 104; Jos. Kani, 104; A. K. Woodward, 104; Lahui, 102; A. K. Keno, 101; D. Koanani, 101; Wm. Ahia, 101.

Seventh Precinct, Fifth District.

The "Fighting Seventh" Precinct of the Fifth District had a spirited voting contest, and sends in a delegation which is well known in conventions and political engagements generally. The Sol. Mahelona ticket won out. The results are as follows for the elected ones:

Territorial—C. B. Maile, 102; L. J. Feary, 52; J. Maukoli, 101.

Not elected—J. Kalaolua, 34; H. E. Peterson, 32; J. M. Riggs, 33; E. C. Winston, 49; J. Mano, 23.

County and District—Alapai, Eli Crawford, Holoua, Peter Kahae, Jos. Kalani, Chas. Kaulukui, M. Kawaiapu, J. Kealanni, Sol. Mahelona, S. Maey, M. B. Punohu, George Wright.

It was nearly three o'clock before balloting began. There were twenty-five names on the ballot. A point arose as to whether it was legal under the rules to have all those names on the ticket, some not having paid their portion of the expenses as expected of the nominees. The matter was finally referred to Mr. Robertson and also to Mr. Kalani, president of the precinct club, and it was decided that in order to avoid a protested election it was better to proceed to the balloting of the ticket as a whole. Eli Crawford was most strenuous in his opposition to this plan.

The entire ticket and the ballots cast for each nominee is as follows: H. Alapai, 102; E. J. Crawford, 78; J. P. Dias, 37; T. Hou, 41; Chas. Holoua, 117; P. Kahae, 82; Jos. Kalana, 81; Chas. Kaulukui, 107; M. Kawaiapu, 66; J. Kawaolua, 48; J. K. Kani, 78; J. Kealanni, 66; W. E. Kimaaka, 33; C. Killehau, 37; Solomon Mahelona (Kolomona), 82; S. Maey, 68; G. S. Mokuaiki, 42; M. Nawaa, 37; M. B. Punohu, 94; S. Paawela, 62; W. K. Rathburn, 48; A. Smith, Jr., 60; G. Wright, 95; J. Wright, 49; C. A. Wills, 46.

Eighth Precinct, Fifth District.

The voting was slow, but the atmosphere was occasionally enlivened by the enthusiasm of the workers in the Eighth Precinct, Fifth District. George Lucas, who is among those elected to the County and District convention, says that the delegation is for Jack Lucas, save one. The delegates elected are:

Territorial—E. N. Voeller, A. K. Pulekulu.

County and District—Kahuna, 55; Kupihua, 48; Barker, 41; Kanuha, 41; Lucas, 40; Markham, 39; Wallace, 39. Not elected—Kauai, 31; Keki, 31; Mahole, 34; Morse, 33; Nawaa, 31; Pinahala, 30.

Ninth Precinct, Fifth District.

At the election held in Achi's stables, Ninth Precinct, Fifth District, Judge Kaulukou and Sam Dwight go to the County convention. There were only thirty-nine votes cast. The delegates elected were as follows:

Territorial—N. Fernandez, Noah Kauhane, William K. Loo, S. W. Spencer.

County and District—H. J. Auld, H. M. Duncan, S. C. Dwight, F. F. Fernandes, Moreno K. Hui, David K. Kama, John Kaponu, John L. Kaulukou, S. M. Pulehu, P. Silva.
